Carroll To Propose Hike In County Road Aid Fund

By MARIA BRADEN
Associated Press Writer

LOUISVILLE, KY. (AP) Gov. Julian Carroll says he will propose that the General Assembly increase the amount of money in the county road aid fund and give local officials more control over how the money is spent.

Carroll indicated Friday that the additional revenue could be produced by increasing the state gasoline tax, but said the increase would be politically feasible only if voters could see direct results in the form of better roads.

Carroll said in an interview that he will reveal the details of his proposal to legislators at the pre-legislative conference later this month.

"Just to flat raise the gas tax — you can't get it done. You have to convince the public that the money's going to flow home," Carroll said after a meeting of the Governor's Task Force on Transportation.

"I'm not only talking about (increasing) the flow of money, but about spending — about more local control over spending," he added.

The governor declined to elaborate further. Carroll's comments came after he was presented with the task force's final report.

One of the more controversial recommendations in that report is that the Legislature immediately increase the motor fuels tax by two-to-11 cents a gallon.

The tax would later be converted to a percentage of the average price per gallon, thereby allowing tax revenues to increase as the cost of gasoline rises.

The task force estimated that each one-cent increase in the gas tax would generate approximately $22 million annually.

The proposal became an issue during the last weeks of the gubernatorial campaign, when Gov.-Elect John Y. Brown Jr. said it might be a good way to bolster the state's ailing road fund. Brown's opponent, former Republican Gov. Louie Nunn, then charged that Brown could be counted on to raise taxes, and would be responsible for making the price of gas even higher than it is.

Charles Beach of Beattyville, chairman of the group's finance committee, outlined recommendations to the governor, saying the state Transportation Department estimated it will take $3 billion over the next 10 years to finance maintenance, debt service, equipment replacement and operational costs of the state's highway system. The committee said:

—The Turnpike Authority should consider doubling current fees on toll roads to keep up with inflation. This would bring in an additional $24 million a year over the biennium, the committee said.

—The Legislature should increase vehicle registration fees on all vehicles from $12.50 to $25 to produce an additional $60 million a year over the next two years.

—The Legislature should consider removing the 5 percent sales tax exemption on motor fuels, and applying it to the wholesale price to simplify collection. The committee estimated that the tax would bring in an additional $66 million annually.

—The Legislature should consider transferring debt service retirement from the road fund to the state's general fund, which has been growing faster than the road fund. The transfer would free up an additional $54 million per year over the next two years.

"Each committee has identified needs, but identifying the methods of financing have been most difficult," Beach said.

He said the main factors influencing any future funding decisions are what transportation services Kentuckians want; what they can afford; what they're willing to pay for, and how they wish to pay.

Carroll agreed identifying needs is not difficult. "What is most difficult is identifying and achieving solutions to these needs," he said.

The task force also made recommendations in the area of rail, water and air transportation and mass transit.

One Of Largest Groups Ever

Fans To Accompany Racers To Western

One of the largest groups of Murray State University football fans is expected to accompany the Racers to Bowling Green Saturday, Nov. 17, for the game which could bring the university sole possession of its first Ohio Valley Conference Championship in 28 years.

With an 8-1-1 record over-all and a 5-0 record in the conference, the Racers will meet Western Kentucky University's Hilltoppers in Smith Stadium with the kickoff scheduled for 1 p.m.

Before the game, Murray alumni, students, faculty and friends are invited to an 11 a.m. to 12 noon brunch in Room 349 of the Downing Student Center, located just across the street from the stadium.

Although sponsored by the Murray State Alumni Association, local arrangements are being coordinated by Dr. Emmett Burken, a 1949 graduate and currently a professor of counselor education at Western.

Reserve seat tickets for the game, at $4.50 each, may be purchased in advance by contacting Bobby Hawk, ticket sales manager, Academic Athletic Building No. 1, 336 Marylan Drive, Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green, KY 42101.

Advance tickets also are available at Murray State through the office of Joe Ward, the Racers' ticket manager. Ward's office is located on the 3rd floor of Sparks Hall and will be open daily from 8 a.m. until 4:30 p.m. through Friday.

Ward said more than 500 tickets to the game already have been sold through his office and an additional 250 will be available early in the week of the 11th. "Murray fans," he said, "should request tickets for the Murray State section if they plan to order them in advance from Hawk and the Hilltoppers' ticket office."

Tickets for this section also may be purchased until 10 a.m. the day of the game at the ticket office on the main floor of Diddle Arena, also just across the street from the Downing Student Center.

Two special buses also have been made available for Murray State students wishing to go to Bowling Green, according to Ross Melon, administrative assistant to Dr. Frank Julian, vice-president for student programs.

Round trip tickets are $2.00 per person and may be purchased at the Student Activities Office in the Student Center, phone number 762-6921. The buses, Melon said, will leave from in front of Winslow Cafeteria at 9:30 a.m., returning shortly after the game.

Also making the trip to Bowling Green will be the 170-member Racer band under the direction of David A. Wells and with Tammy Melendez, David Brumley and Tracy Sadler as its field commanders.

The band's colorful halftime show will consist of John Phillip Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever"; a dance routine to the theme from "What's Happening" and featuring the guard unit; an original drum solo with the band's version of the "27th Lancer File" at the end.

The show will be concluded with "The Bottle Dance" from "Fiddler on the Roof," and in which the guard unit again is featured with the band providing powerful background music.

Tehran Radio Reports Khomeini Will Not Receive Anyone Soon

By The Associated Press

Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini will not receive anyone over the weekend, Tehran Radio reported today. It apparently dashed hopes for the early release of some 60 Americans held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in the Iranian capital for nearly a week by Moslem militants demanding the shah's extradition.

The broadcast, monitored by the Kuwait News Agency, said Khomeini's decision was announced without elaboration, but that observers felt it meant discussion of the fate of the captives was postponed until Monday.

Palestine Liberation Organization sources had said they expected some of the hostages — perhaps a dozen — would be released soon as a result of PLO mediation, but the State Department was less optimistic.

Libya criticized the PLO for its effort today, saying the PLO "should stand with all Arabs by the side of the Islamic revolution in Iran that faces an American-Zionist plot."

Meanwhile, a Kuwaiti newspaper, Al Siyassah, claimed Sudanese President Gaafar Nimeiri was on a secret visit to Washington, both for treatment at Walter Reed Hospital and consultations with the U.S. government.

It quoted diplomats as saying Nimeiri arrived in Washington Tuesday and was due to leave today or Sunday. But there was no immediate confirmation and it was not known if the visit might be connected with the Iranian crisis.

The U.N. Security Council urged immediate release of the captives Friday, but the plea apparently fell on deaf ears, and angry Americans took to the streets of their cities to vent their rage.

A PLO source in Istanbul, Turkey, said the three-man team guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat sent to Tehran was hopeful some of the hostages would be freed soon.

The source, who asked anonymity, claimed the Palestinian emissaries were meeting with representatives of Khomeini and the Iranian mob who took over the embassy Sunday.

The source said the invaders told the PLO officials the captives were in good health and being given food and water, although relief officials of the Iranian Red Lion organization said some were under "mental duress."

The source and other PLO officials said they were informing President Carter's peace emissary, former Attorney General Ramsey Clark, of the progress of negotiations.

Clark and Senate aide William Miller were stalled in Istanbul Wednesday when Iranian authorities refused to meet with them or receive the letter they were carrying from the U.S. president urging freedom for the hostages.

The Iranians want the United States to haul Shah Mohammad Reza Pahlavi from the New York hospital where he is being treated for cancer and extradite him to Iran as a war criminal, something Washington has refused to do.

Asked about chances for gaining freedom for the hostages, State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said in Washington, "I am not able to offer you some new hope about a speedy release."

More Than 140 People Arrested After American-Iranian Clash

By CHARLOTTE PORTER
Associated Press Writer

More than 140 people were arrested after Americans clashed with Iranians in the second day of street demonstrations following the taking of 60 Americans hostage in the U.S. embassy in Iran. U.S. political leaders urged people to stay calm.

"Do you know what would happen if I write exactly what is happening out there — if I transmit it to 34 million Iranians?" asked Iranian reporter Seyed Ahmad as he paced an office just a block from an angry demonstration in Los Angeles.

About 130 Iranians and 15 Americans were arrested Friday in that West Coast city when a march banned by police turned into a melee between the Iranians and a larger number of hostile Americans.

The Iranians called the demonstration to show support for countrymen who are holding about 60 hostages in the U.S. Embassy in Tehran. Those students are demanding the return of the shah from New York, where he is undergoing treatment for cancer.

Meanwhile, Americans carrying placards saying "Punch Persian Punks," "Death to Khomeini," and "Nuke Iran" marched in Houston, Cape Cod, Mass., Boulder, Colo., Philadelphia and Seattle while President Carter and other politicians urged them to keep calm.

Among those urging cool heads was Minnesota Gov. Al Quie, who was giving a reception for international students when police arrested five — including four Iranians — on charges of attempting to kidnap him. Aides said they had no idea what might have sparked the alleged attempt and said they did not believe Quie had made any comment about the embassy takeover. Quie expressed concern about hostile reactions to the arrests and urged: "Let's not panic."

"Right now, I counsel anyone who cares about those Americans to keep their mouths shut," said Sen. Howard Baker, R-Tenn.

SALT II Treaty Heads For Long Senate Debate

WASHINGTON (AP) — The SALT II treaty is heading toward a long and heated Senate debate that Democratic leaders say will begin only when "prospects for ratification are bright."

The pact was voted out of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee on a 9-6 roll call vote Friday in a major foreign policy success for President Carter.

But the divisions on the committee and in the full Senate are so deep that prospects for SALT II being ratified by the necessary two-thirds vote are uncertain at best.

The treaty could be placed on the Senate calendar shortly after Thanksgiving, following the writing of majority and minority reports.

However, there are strong indications actual debate may not begin until December and perhaps later.

Sen. Frank Church, D-Idaho, the Foreign Relations Committee chairman, said he has taken no vote count. By most estimates a majority of senators remain officially uncommitted.

But Church added: "I would hope the majority leader does not report the treaty until its prospects for ratification are bright. That's his plan." Robert Byrd, D-W.Va., is the Senate's majority leader.

Senate Republican Leader Howard H. Baker of Tennessee, a GOP presidential contender, said the margin by which the committee recommended the treaty be approved is not enough for ratification by the Senate.

"The Senate will probably insist on amendments" to the treaty, he said, warning that a lack of amendments "will kill it."

HEALTH

Careful exercise

Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — I'm a 78-year-old lady and have been in good health until two years ago. I had a lot of backaches. My doctor tells me I have osteoporosis. I'm taking calcium with vitamin D. I weigh 130 pounds. I get along real well until I do some heavy work like shoveling snow or working in the yard. My present problem is that I'm losing hair. Every time I comb my hair I comb out quite a bunch and it doesn't seem to be growing back. I'm afraid I'm going to lose all my hair. My head itches so much. I've been going to a dermatologist for a year and it doesn't help. He says there's no cure.

DEAR READER — First, about your osteoporosis which is softening of the bones and occurs rather commonly as people get older. It's particularly apt to occur in small women.

Calcium and vitamin D have both been used in its treatment and are helpful in some cases. It's certainly true that women on calcium deficient diets are five times as likely to develop osteoporosis as those who have plenty of calcium in the diet.

I am sending you The Health Letter number 6-10, Osteoporosis: Bone Softening. Other readers who want this issue can send 75 cents with a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for it. Send your request to me, in care of this newspaper, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, NY 10019.

The large number of older women with the dowager's hump, or sometimes called the buffalo hump, are people who have osteoporosis. This disease is also responsible for the major increase in fractures in people past middle age. That includes the hip fracture that may occur with a minor fall.

Now, as many of my readers know, I often recommend exercise. But it's like everything else, it has to be used properly. People with osteoporosis have weakened skeletal systems. That means they should avoid lifting, such as shoveling snow and hard work which might actually cause a spontaneous fracture of other bones. That doesn't mean you shouldn't exercise but it should be a different type of exercise to help strengthen the body and gradually strengthen the bony structure. To achieve this, I recommend the advice of a physical therapist who can design a program of activity suitable for the individual.

I wish there was something I could do about your losing hair. We all tend to lose more hair as we get older and in some people it's more of a problem than in others. That possibly has something to do with inherited characteristics. I am sending you The Health Letter number 12-6, Hair Care. You can learn from it a lot about the hair and the different factors that affect losing it.

About the best I can advise are the things I'm sure your dermatologist has already told you — to avoid heat of any form on the hair, don't pull or comb it vigorously. In fact, you'd be better off to use a very wide tooth comb and not to comb too frequently.

Anyone who does have an excessive loss of hair for no apparent reason should see a dermatologist as you have done to find out the cause. There are a host of things which can contribute to the problem.

3 tablespoons butter, soft

10-ounce package frozen chopped kale

1-3rd cup (generous) commercial sour cream

Salt and pepper to taste

Bake potatoes in a preheated 400-degree oven until very soft — about 45 minutes.

Remove skins and force potato through a ricer or mash until smooth; stir in butter. Meanwhile cook kale according to package directions; drain, pressing out liquid — there should be ¾ cup kale; chop very fine. Mix together potato, kale, sour cream, salt and pepper. Reheat over boiling water or in a microwave oven. Makes 4 servings.

Make Bathroom Convenient For All

From The Desk Of

Jean W. Cloar

County Extension Agent

For Home Economics

For an elderly or handicapped person, it can be frustrating or impossible to perform cleanliness routines in a bathroom not equipped with safe and appropriate apparatuses. But with thoughtful planning, the elderly and handicapped can carry on usual grooming routines. It can be accomplished by rearranging the bathroom, supplying different surroundings or remodeling to include safe, convenient fixtures and furnishings.

Altering a bathroom can range from easy-to-make changes to the more complicated, perhaps even remodeling, depending on the person's degree of mobility or type of handicap.

Some of the simple additions that include attaching grab bars securely to the wall near the tub, shower, sink and toilet. If remodeling with new fixtures, keep in mind that some tubs and toilets include grab bars as part of the unit. Check that grab bars are non-skid.

Supply non-breakable soap dishes and drinking glasses. Place these, other grooming aids, towel racks, toilet tissue roll, mirrors, counter and BILL BOYD, president of the Peoples Bank of Murray, presented the program at the October meeting of the Hazel Woman's Club held at the Hazel Community Center. He prepared the New Orleans' recipe, Banana Foster, which was later served by the hostesses, Mrs. Tommy Story and Mrs. Houston Ray. The devotion was by Mrs. Max Parks. The pledge to the flag was led by Mrs. Dale Nance, president, who also explained the purposes of the club to prospective members present who were Mesdames Tim Erwin, Joey Berlando, Bob Washer, Annette Wilson, Cecil Dunlap, Mary Smith, and Bill Robinson. Mrs. Ray gave a report on the First District KFWC meeting at Mayfield with several Hazel members in attendance. Other members present were Mesdames Hughes Bennett, Lal Elliott, James R. storage space at a height for convenient access.

Provide a sturdy, slip-resistant seat in bathtub or shower. Tub and shower flooring should have a nonslip surface. If not built in, apply rough textured adhesive tape strips. Well fitted, wall to wall carpeting provides a surface for more secure footing to prevent falls on slippery floors.

Good lighting is essential. A soft night light eliminates dangerous groping for a light switch. Store medications separately from other items and label each in large, clear letters or some other form for easy identification.

Ler-type faucet handles may be easier to manipulate than knobs. Other desirable features may be thermostatically controlled fittings on the outside of the tub or shower.

Don't overlook accessories that make bathing and grooming easier and more comfortable. A sponge with a pocket to hold soap can be readily gasped for lathering; it also helps to keep the soap in hand. A backbrush, hose-spray attachment and a well-lit mirror attached to the wall near the wash basin are other aids to consider.

Of course, the entire bathroom should be kept clean. If the person has to take care of the room alone, provide long-handled brushes and sponges, as well as a convenient spot for storing cleaning products and cloths.

If designing a new bathroom keep in mind that more space is needed for persons in wheel chairs or dependent on walkers. Also, a toilet measuring 18" from the floor is more convenient than a 15" model. A wall mounted one is easier to clean. Consider also setting the wash basin 36" high rather than 31", providing space underneath.

Have plenty of counter space available on either side of the basin for grooming essentials and medications. Finally, it's a good idea to install a telephone in the bathroom and a call signal button so help can be summoned in an emergency.

A bathroom that is equipped with appropriate apparatuses for the elderly and/or the handicapped will greatly aid daily grooming routines which are important to a feeling of well being for everyone.

Gets Mileage From Smileage

DEAR ABBY: A year ago I was a poor student, shy, lonely, friendless, unhappy and I never smiled. I wrote to you, and you gave me the best advice I ever received. Here it is: "The key to being popular with both sexes is: Be kind. Be honest. Be tactful. If you can't be beautiful (or handsome), be well-groomed, tastefully attired, trim of figure and KEEP A SMILE ON YOUR FACE!"

"Be clean in body and mind. If you're not a 'brain,' try harder. If you're not a great athlete, you can be a good sport. Try to be a standout in something. If you can't dance or sing, learn to play an instrument. Think for yourself, but respect the rules. Be generous with kind words and affectionate gestures, but save the heavy artillery for later. You'll be glad you did. If you need help, ask God. If you don't need anything, thank God."

Love,

Abby"

I followed your advice step by step, and kept it handy when I felt low. I am now president of the sophomore class, and I play the guitar. Smiling comes naturally to me, and I have a boyfriend who is kind and respectable. My grades are better, and I have more friends now than I ever dreamed I'd have.

Abby, you're not the only one who helped me. God helped me. He answered my prayers.

CAROL

DEAR ABBY: After reading your column on HOW TO DRIVE A SALESPERSON CRAZY, I felt compelled to give the customer's side of it:

HOW TO MAKE A CUSTOMER'S DAY

• If a customer approaches, run and hide in the back room.

• Continue to chat with other salespersons about what you did last night.

• Never smile. A deadpan stare (or frown) will discourage customers from bothering you.

• Never offer assistance. Wait for the customer to ask for help.

• Never serve customers in the order they enter the shop. Wait on whoever has the nerve to elbow their way up to the front.

• Don't stop stocking and taking inventory to serve customers. The fact that their purchases pay your salary is immaterial.

• Forget the motto, "The customer is always right." They are always WRONG, so don't let them put anything over on you.

• Chew gum, eat candy or sneak a smoke while you're on the job. As long as your boss doesn't see you, it's OK.

• If a teenager (or someone who's not very well dressed) wants to be waited on, either ignore them or don't waste much time with them. They're probably "just looking" anyway.

• If you do all the above, the customer will surely shop somewhere else and you won't be bothered writing up any sales.

SORE AT SALESPERSONS IN MILWAUKEE

DEAR ABBY: You said, "The younger man should apologize to the older man" if they have had a falling out and neither wants to make the first move.

Abby, if a person is wrong, no matter what his age, he should apologize. Why should a person have to give in just because he is younger?

I think respect should be earned, not automatically given to people just because they've been breathing for a long time.

YOUNG BUT STILL LEARNING

DEAR YOUNG: If you honestly feel that age doesn't entitle one to any special consideration (and a modicum of respect), you still have much to learn.

Problems? You'll feel better if you get them off your chest. For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Cal. 90069. Please enclose stamped, self-addressed envelope.

THE ACES

IRA G. CORN, JR.

"Men are the sport of circumstances, when the circumstances seem the sport of men." — Lord Byron.

East took advantage of circumstances in his defense of today's entrapping slam. He knew declarer to be an expert and played to take advantage of that. He also knew his partner was capable of error, which helped him set the trap.

East was Michael Becker of New York City, a top player who represented the United States in the 1973 Bermuda Bowl.

West led a trump, giving nothing away with the lead, and declarer won with his jack. The jack of clubs was led immediately and, when West followed with the five, dummy ducked and East won the trick.

With what card? Well, let's see what would have happened had he won the trick with his queen.

East would switch to diamonds, but declarer would win his ace (if the diamond finesse were taken and had succeeded, declarer would still need some luck in clubs). A heart would be led to dummy's king and dummy's king of clubs pushed through. East's club ace would be subjected to a ruffing finesse and declarer's diamond losers would go on the clubs.

Becker knew that declarer's club jack was singleton because an expert knows that Blackwood is useless when holding a worthless doubleton. So he won declarer's club jack with his ace.

East exited with his last trump to dummy's king and declarer cashed the club king and ruffed a club, hoping to drop the hidden queen in the West hand. West's discard came as a complete surprise (to declarer) and now the slam was out of reach. Declarer was forced to try a diamond finesse and West took his king for the setting trick.

Even the best declarers can go wrong when a defender makes a brilliant falsecard.

ANSWER: Three no trump. A raise to two no trump satisfies the point requirements, but dodges the issue. If the club suit will run, game is a good bet. If not, then two no trump may also fail.

Your Individual Horoscope

Frances Drake

FOR MONDAY, NOVEMBER 12, 1979

What kind of day will tomorrow be? To find out what the stars say, read the forecast given for your birth Sign.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) ♈
Balance mental and physical well-being. Sports and exercise may be the best way to ward off a bout with nervous tension.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) ♉
Go ahead with that domestic plan. Possible difficulty in understanding a child or getting your point across. Watch excess spending.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) ♊
Your tongue is like a rapier — don't hurt others with caustic remarks, esp. those you care for. Possible domestic tension.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) ♋
Little things about work are liable to get to you after working hours. If you think about it, there's no need to fret so much.

LEO (July 23 to Aug. 22) ♌
You'll want your own way now, but will have to compromise to get along better with others. A child's spending habits may get to you.

VIRGO (Aug. 23 to Sept. 22) ♍
Avoid self-destructive thinking. A cool head is needed, which is best achieved by not letting petty problems upset you.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) ♎
Make sure your mind knows what your heart is feeling. Inner worries could cause you to speak ill-advisedly. Or to feign indifference.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) ♏
Career progress indicated, but small irritations could arise among friends. Your reactions to small things could be out of proportion.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) ♐
Take the first step in contacting those who might help you. Watch your tongue in career dealings. Don't let the cat out of the bag.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 19) ♑
Watch a tendency to be critical. Why find fault if you're not truly concerned. People of differing opinions needn't bother you.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20 to Feb. 18) ♒
Don't be dictatorial with close ones. Be careful in financial dealings, esp. with friends. Wait for another time to sign papers.

PISCES (Feb. 19 to Mar. 20) ♓
Not the best time to bring office problems home with you. Be considerate of the needs of close ones to get away from it all.

YOU BORN TODAY have a flair for self-expression and can win others to your point of view. You're apt to experiment before settling on a career, though you have natural affinity for both art and science. In particular, acting, design, medicine, and literature are fields in which you'd find happiness.

Living It Up

Chrysler Corp. certainly isn't the only business in Detroit fighting off bankruptcy.

Wayne County itself, which includes the city of Detroit and 2.7 million in population, is on the rocks.

Right now, Wayne County is in the process of laying off all but an essential few of its 5,300 employees.

Chrysler's troubles can be laid to its failure to adapt quickly enough to public demand for gasoline-efficient motorcars, or to government-mandated safety and anti-pollution devices, depending upon whether one believes Chrysler or its critics.

But Wayne County suffers from simple mismanagement.

Its administration is without central authority, splintered into autonomous political units, dominated by labor unions, and run by a cumbersome 21-member board of county commissioners.

The county's bookkeeping is such that it doesn't know how much money it has or how much it owes.

It does know, however, that it is broke. Its treasury is empty with a full month before the end of this fiscal year.

The predicament in Wayne County is one that has become all too well known in recent years, and this very thing has come up before in Detroit and Wayne County.

For years, Wayne County's budget process has consisted of giving all the diverse pressure groups of a depressed metropolitan area enough money to keep them quiet and giving the overpaid and tightly unionized employees enough to keep them happy.

It was predictable that this reckless policy has run a deficit that has reached $19.5 million, despite a huge and growing tax base.

And now Wayne County has looked to the state of Michigan to bail it out, much as New York City turned to the federal government when its own mismanagement took it to the brink of bankruptcy.

But the state of Michigan is reluctant — understandably so — to pull Wayne County out of its financial pit until it demonstrates some ability to stay out.

Gov. William G. Milliken has said this will require a county charter amendment by Wayne County's voters that will reduce the size of the county commission, consolidate the independent departments, and create either an elected county executive or an appointed county manager who can avoid the excesses of the past.

We don't envy the person who will be elected or appointed to manage Wayne County's tangled affairs. He or she will not be met with approval by all the factions seeking a bigger slice of the Wayne County pie.

Wayne County's problems should be a lesson to other counties and cities — and to the federal government, for that matter — that there is only one end to living beyond your means.

Washington Today

Strauss' Headway

WASHINGTON (AP) — Robert S. Strauss leaves his job as President Carter's special Middle East mediator with the quest for an Arab-Israeli settlement lagging but not lost.

Strauss is returning to politics as manager of the Carter campaign and in a farewell assessment of Middle East diplomacy, he said he had not achieved "an iota of an agreement."

Actually, there has been some headway during Strauss' six months as a diplomat, although nothing approaching a settlement on the future rights of Palestinians now in Israeli-controlled territory.

That progress is about the only encouragement available to Sol Linowitz, who succeeds Strauss in a long line of troubleshooters who have tried to resolve the Middle East conflicts.

From Joseph Sisco, William Rogers and Henry Kissinger, through Cyrus Vance, Alfred Atherton and Strauss, they persuaded, cajoled, bullied and coaxed the two sides along.

The result is that Egypt and Israel are at peace, though they are far apart on an autonomy plan for Palestinian Arabs living on the West Bank of the Jordan River and in Gaza.

Linowitz gets his first opportunity next week when he goes to the Middle East for ceremonies marking Israel's return of Mount Sinai to Egyptian control.

Before accepting the Carter campaign job, Strauss had concluded that neither Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin nor Egyptian President Anwar Sadat wanted to be hurried. Linowitz, less an arm-twister, is unlikely to change this approach.

Late last month, Strauss and Mustapha Khalil and Josef Burg, the top Egyptian and Israeli negotiators, met in London and took a couple of significant steps.

First, they decided Israeli and Palestinian civilians would conduct the elections with neutral observers and the international press on hand to see that balloting was free and fair.

Second, they cleared a procedural roadblock. Instead of trying to decide in advance which governing powers would be turned over to an elected Palestinian council and which would remain with Israel, they decided to define the government functions necessary in the West Bank and Gaza. The idea is to define the powers of governing, and then find which can be assigned to the Palestinians without controversy.

These steps indicate a willingness of Sadat and Begin to move ahead.

But as Linowitz takes over, the outlook for further accommodation between Israel and Egypt is not clear.

Inflation, the resignation of Foreign Minister Moshe Dayan and a Supreme Court decision disallowing some West Bank settlements have weakened the Begin government. If it collapsed, the talks would be stalled until successors had taken over and settled on a policy.

Egypt might take a harder line in negotiations once Israel turns over the Sinai oilfields Nov. 25. With that prize in Egyptian hands, Sadat would not be running a risk if he rejected Begin's limited approach to Palestinian autonomy.

John Green, third child of Colin and Winnie Green was born April 1, 1847 in Stewart County, Tennessee. He died as a young man, never having married. He enlisted as a Confederate soldier at age 15. His mother attempted to have him returned home, because of his young age, but John refused to leave the army. He was killed at the Battle of Nashville, and buried in Nashville, Tennessee.

James Green, fourth child of Colin and Winnie, was born February 13, 1849. He married Mary Tedwell. They were the parents of three children: Sherman, Samuel, and Della.

Elijah and Grace Green moved to Arkansas in 1901, and later to Muskogee County, Oklahoma, where they both died. Elijah Green died October 17, 1925, and Grace Merts Green died October 9, 1943.

Elijah and Grace Green were the parents of ten children: George, born 1877; William E., born 1879; Fred D., born 1881; Samuel M., born 1885; Jesse D., born 1886; Iva (Hasely), born 1888; Lula born 1892 and died 1910; Myrtle (Thurman), born 1896; Grace (Earnest), born 1897; and Jennings, born 1901.

Due to such factors as large families and the lack of transportation such as we have now, it is easy to see how one family, such as the one given here, can branch out and become part of other neighboring families. With the world becoming a much smaller place nowadays, children grow up and leave home, eventually marrying others who are not part of their immediate neighborhood. This, family structures are changing nowadays, becoming less close-knit. But it will always be interesting to trace down one of the old-time families, noting especially how the branches touch in so many different places to other families.

Thoughts In Season

By Ken Wolf

Perhaps the American revolutionaries of the eighteenth century ought to be remembered, less for the specific changes in government that they advocated than for the sense of possibility that infused much of their writing — and is so clearly lacking in political discourse in our own day.

This belief in the ability of man to change his political state is quite clear in this passage from the famous pamphlet, The Rights of Man, written by Thomas Paine and published in 1791-92:

From a small spark, kindled in American, a flame has arisen not to be extinguished...It winds its progress from Nation to Nation and conquers by a silent operation. Man finds himself changed...He acquires a knowledge of his rights be attending justly to his interest, and discovers...that the strength and powers of despotism consist wholly in the fear of resisting it, and that in order 'to be free it is sufficient that he wills it.'

Kentucky Business Scene

Decision On Coal Needed

LEXINGTON, KY. — The government must make up its mind about the place of coal in the energy picture and recognize that transportation is as much a part of providing energy as are the producers and the utilities.

That's what Prime F. Osborn, chairman and chief executive officer of Seaboard Coast Line Industries, said in solving the nation's energy problem.

In addressing the annual meeting of the Kentucky Coal Association, Osborn said: "It is imperative that the government establish a firm, complete government policy on energy and clarify the place of coal in that policy."

The rail executive also said the absence of a true national transportation policy is contributing to the energy problem.

He stated that the L&N-originated coal is expected to reach 90 million tons by 1984, a 50 percent increase over the record year 1977. Between 1968 and 1977, L&N tonnage increased some 60 percent while two other leading coal hauling railroads in the area experienced a 21 percent decrease.

To prepare for the expected increase in coal production, he described a $427 million, 5-year program of capital expenditures for the L&N. Included will be acquisition of 187 six-axle locomotives, 7,430 open-top hopper cars and several projects to increase its coal-moving capacity. The carrier is building and lengthening passing tracks, putting in double tracks in some areas, replacing 300 miles of existing rail with heavier welded rail, improving signaling, replacing bridges and expanding yard and equipment facilities, he said.

On service improvements, Osborn singled out one coal run which previously had a transit time of 10 to 11 days and now moves in less than 7½ days, with promise of an even greater improvement. The railroad handled a record 573 unit trains in September, and Osborn projected a minimum of 575-600 unit trains per month if demand continues strong.

Commenting on the recent 22 percent rate increase granted the L&N for movement of original traffic, he said the increase was designed to permanently improve the L&N's financial condition by allowing it to adequately cover costs of handling the traffic. He said the increase was not requested to totally fund the $427 million capital improvement program. "The hard truth is that prior to the 22 percent increase, L&N was not covering full costs of handling its coal business."

He said average L&N coal rates had been far lower than comparable rates on Chessie and N&W, and even the 22 percent increase left L&N rates lower than both railroads.

Osborn referred to the proposed merger of L&N's parent corporation, SCL Industries, with the Chessie System and said the consolidation would open new and wider markets for existing coal-mining operations, as well as facilitate the development of rich, untapped coal reserves.

FOUR WHEELING

By Hamp Brooks Jr.

Gas Mileage With Four Wheel Drives

Today's topic? Gas mileage with four wheel drives. Wonderful it's most certainly not! Granted - there are developments coming and already available that make the picture a bit brighter. For one thing the International Scout turbocharged diesel. For another the Jeep with its new Hurricane 4 cylinder. Both of these promise to be four wheeling rigs with twenty plus miles per gallon.

Trouble is that most of us already have four wheel drives and at the present time with interest like it is and shortage of coin to spend on new rigs, we're likely aiming to drive what we've got or maybe swap for a used rig. And there are some to be true who are out looking for their first four wheeler prior to the coming bad weather. What is the story on gas mileage?

First, it's good to realize there are two major types of four wheel drives. Big and little. The little ones usually get reasonable mileage anyway since they're about a ton lighter and don't have to push a hangar full of atmosphere out of the way to proceed down the road. Most folks have the big ones. And they are the ones who do most of the griping. Primarily pickups, with Blazers and similar size rigs thrown in.

What should you get in the way of gas mileage? Remember, you're driving a two and a half ton mechanical bull with a profile on the way yonder back side of aerodynamic! If it has a manual transmission, reasonable sized tires, and decent axle ratios the norm would be around twelve miles per gallon. And driven sensibly, maybe higher on highway runs. Again this rig is not the most common. Probably you have an automatic transmission in a big four wheel drive. Deduct two miles per gallon. Ten. Provided its part time four wheel drive with freewheeling hubs you can lock out on the front axle. Again, a bit better can be expected on straight highway driving without much stopping and startups. You see several of these rigs around. You'll see more in the future. The wave of progress in technical improvements has run sadly ashore in view of the oil crisis.

Full time four wheel drive with automatic transmission. The best combination on icy streets and snowlogged roads. We say that having driven them all. Gas mileage? About Eight. Ouch! Somewhere between a third and a half of the four wheel drives you see running around are probably this type of setup.

The idea people are well aware of this, and already have on the market a kit to convert full time four wheel drives to part time. Cost? Four to five hundred dollars depending on the particular unit. You can do the same thing by removing your front driveshaft and driving in the Lock position. Not as expensive but a good deal more inconvenient, especially on a four above zero morning with three inches of snow on the ground and you flat on your back trying to get the stupid things hooked back together!

Strength and toughness are four wheel drive traditions. It is likely that about everything Detroit will go to in the next five years to improve mileage will cut into those traditions. Most of us I am sure are willing to take some tradeoffs but there is a point which will be reached that will find us unhappy for sure. Treetop high axle ratios which the cars already have. Good for economy. Murder on transmissions when you want to pull something. Plastic bumpers and lightweight bodies - not much to recommend when tapping trees and scraping boulders are part of a rig's everyday life. Dollar a gallon gasoline hurts for sure. Yet the steps taken to improve mileage may reach the point they will hurt even worse. Its something to keep in mind. The economy of four wheel drive does not lay in gas mileage - it never has. The real economy is a rig tough enough to keep on getting it for ten years and still be able to hold its head up even then.

The fellow who bought the first Toyota Land Cruiser way back in 1948 is a case in point. He still doesn't know how tough it is and how long it will last. Because he's still using it every day!

It is not easy to have your cake and eat it too! In closing let's not overlook the guy with the uncle or fifth cousin who's got that Chevrolet four wheel drive truck with full time and automatic and big V8 and is racking up an "honest" thirty two miles per gallon! Where there is life there is hope. And hope is most times a dream that's not got around to happening. At least not in our driveway.

Have a nice week and HAPPY FOUR WHEELING.

LAKELAND OUTDOORS

Alaska: Big State With Big Land Use Problem

The day was bright, a rarity for coastal Alaska in the fall, and ahead of us lay some of the most breathtaking scenery in the world. The southern end of the Alaskan Mountains rose like a vertical sheet from the west shore of Cook Inlet, and soon we'd be flying through a pass, picking our way through granite, snow-covered peaks which soared a thousand feet above our altitude.

The "we" was a group of 20 outdoor writers from across the lower 48 states. We'd been invited on a week long tour of the 49th and largest state which borders the world's roof.

Our group had taken off an hour earlier from Anchorage in three small planes, and we were headed for an overnight fishing stop at Kulik Lodge, a camp nestled deep in the southwest Alaskan wilderness. But fishing was only a break from our real purpose: to learn about the Alaskan land use controversy now being debated in the U.S. Senate. We discovered that the issue is complicated and multi-faceted. How it's decided will have long-lasting effects on the Alaskan people and their lifestyles. But the implications, and final settlement, will also hold great meaning for American sportsmen and citizens in general.

The State

Alaska is mind-staggering. It claims 586,412 square miles. It is surrounded on three sides by 33,904 miles of shoreline. It is 2,400 miles across from southeast to northwest, and it has more than 3 million lakes larger than an acre. It has the nation's highest mountain, its most spectacular glaciers, its largest populations of big game animals, and its richest mineral and wood resources.

The cities of Alaska are modern, but the rest of the state is not a place for those who don't like the outdoors. At Kulik Lodge an electric fence kept brown bears out of the camp's only flush toilet. At Bettles (population 62), situated in interior Alaska at the foot of the Brooks Range, wolves are a menace to family pets. Yet the manager of a way station there said he's thinking about moving. Things are getting too crowded.

Prudhoe Bay, site of Alaska's North Slope oil operation, is desolate and snow-ridden for eight months of the year. But when spring finally breaks the tundra bustles with waterfowl, caribou, small mammals and insects.

It's a land on a grand scale, and the people are hearty. Many look with disdain at the federal bureaucracy. They can take care of themselves, and this school of thought has caused many Alaskans to resist federal instructions on what they can, and cannot do. This includes land use laws.

The Trip

As I stated, the trip was to familiarize outdoor writers, hence the sporting public, about what's happening in Alaska. To clear the air, the trip was sponsored and paid for by the Atlantic Richfield Company, the major developer of the oil fields on the North Slope. I was fearful that we'd hear the straight pro-company, pro-development line, that we wouldn't hear the "other" side.

Alaska is a land of superlatives: big state, big fish, big wealth, and big problems. The U.S. Congress is putting the finishing touches on Alaskan land use legislation, and many 49th state residents disagree with the bill's proposals. Outdoor writer Jim Martin, above, was one of 20 outdoor writers who toured the state recently to familiarize themselves with the controversy. Martin caught this five pound rainbow trout during a fishing break.

But the tour didn't justify my fears. We had access to all sides, including environmentalists who are pushing for a policy of stringent resource and land use, the state's governor and lieutenant governor, Alaskan natives, sportsmen's groups, mining and timber interests, and other citizens organizations. We had free access to them all, to ask them questions and to hear them question each other.

The Lands Controversy

When oil was discovered on the North Slope, it was decided that the only feasible way to move it to market was through a trans-Alaska pipeline. But the pipeline would have to pass through land claimed by Alaskan natives (Indians, Eskimos and Aleuts) via aboriginal right. The federal government recognized the natives claims, and the two parties negotiated a settlement in 1971 called the Alaska Native Claims Settlement Act. The natives were promised clear title to 44 million acres of land and almost a billion dollars to give up their aboriginal rights. Work on the pipeline was then given the nod.

An obscure section of the native claims act (Section 17 (d) (2)) instructed the Secretary of Interior to set aside up to 80 million acres for Congress to consider for placement into various conservation units by Dec. 18, 1978. That section has caused the rub. What land, how much, and how it will be used is the crux of the whole controversy. Woven into the dispute are complications of states rights, subsistence hunting (as opposed to sport hunting), economics of Alaska and its various cultures, and use of natural resources.

In response to the act's Section (d) (2) clause, the House of Representatives went to work and came up with H.R. 39, a bill which upped the land set-aside to 123 million acres from the prescribed 80 million. These lands were carved up by the bill and designated as national parks, national preserves, refuges and wilderness areas.

Many Alaskans hit the ceiling. Millions of acres, previously open to virtually unlimited use in terms of hunting, trapping, etc., would be closed, thanks, according to Alaskans, to preservationist lobbyists on Capitol Hill. Access to lands left open would be blocked. Mineral and timber resources would be eliminated from possible use, even under the most stringent environmental guidelines.

The senate debated its own Alaska land use bill, one which would have been less restrictive in terms of land classification. Most lands designated in H.R. 39 as parks - no hunting, little resource use - were earmarked in the Senate bill as national preserves or refuges.

But the senate adjourned before the Alaska bill was passed. Then President Carter, since the senate failed to reach a settlement, invoked the 1906 Antiquities Act and withdrew 56 million acres for federal management and protection. Also, the Secretary of Interior withdrew 110 million acres (some overlap with Carter's Antiquities lands) to provide emergency protection from development use for three years or until Congress finally settles the issue.

Meanwhile, Alaskans are left hanging. This year much prime hunting country was declared off limits. The federal government owes the state 103 million acres (due to the Statehood Act), but it won't let the state select more than its current 22 million acres. Some groups are ready to fight for succession. Others want to settle quickly and get down to the business of amending whatever settlement is made. Still other groups want to hold the line and assure that development and expanded growth won't mar Alaska the way they have major areas in the lower 48 states. Passions are high, and electricity is in the air.

Congress is now back in session, and the senate is debating the Alaska bill once again. Exactly what they're debating, how various interest groups will be effected, and my opinions on Alaskan land use will follow in next week's column.

The Duck Call

By Charlie McKenney

By the time most of you read this Saturday afternoon several local D.U. committee members will be out at the Jaycee Center getting ready for the annual banquet.

It doesn't seem possible but the time is here once again for the annual Ducks Unlimited Sportsman's Banquet.

The Murray-Calloway Co. Chapter of Ducks Unlimited uses this once a year affair to raise money for the preservation of waterfowl breeding grounds mostly in Canada.

The money must come from the sale of items at the banquet. The question might be asked, where does the local chapter get all those items that are auctioned off? Well, the fact of the matter is that the majority of the auction items and all the door prize items come from the local community.

Without the support of the local merchants, businessmen, and interested individuals there would not be a banquet.

This year special emphasis will be put on the fact that certain businessmen and individuals have made great contributions to the local effort.

In this time of high inflation and smaller profits the local merchants should get special recognition for their support.

I want to take this opportunity to thank all those merchants who donated items big or small to the local D. U. Chapter.

Special thanks are in order for Overby Honda, Hooks Tires, Wheels & Acc., The Triangle Inn, Wallis Stained Glass, and Starks Concrete all these businessmen donated $100.00 or more. Also, thanks to several area used car dealers who pitched in to buy two Remington 870 shotguns.

One will be used as a door prize the other one will be auctioned to the highest bidder.

Last years banquet enabled the local chapter to send $2,578.17 to the National Chapter of Ducks Unlimited. Let's hope that we can send even more this year.

As for ticket information, its like this. The meal served at the banquet will be catered by the Triangle Inn. So Don Gilbert needs to know how many people will attend before Saturday night. Realizing that plans can always change at the last minute, there will be 10 tickets available at the door. So if you want to attend but don't have a ticket just come on out to the Jaycee Center anytime after 5:30 tonight, and bring lots of money.

See You Tonight.
MAY ALL YOUR HUNTING BE SAFE & ENJOYABLE.

Bob Strode, Aurora, took Big Bass honors with this five pound nine ounce lunker.

The Kentucky Lake Bass Club held a club tournament out of Little River, on Barkley Lake, Saturday, November 3. Winners were, left to right, Bob Strode, Aurora, first place, Pee Wee Delk, Mayfield, second place, Harold Griffin, Gilbertsville, third place.

Kentucky Afield

By John Wilson

Kentucky had nine reported hunting accidents, seven of them fatal, in 1978. All of them probably could have been avoided by observing just a few rules of safe gun handling, according to Marion Mattingly, the senior hunter training officer for the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' conservation education division.

"Three of these nine mishaps occurred because the victim was in the line of fire," Mattingly says, "and the other six, including four self-inflicted casualties, were caused by careless gun handling."

A rifle was involved in only one accident and shotguns in the other eight. "Some hunters seem to think that shotguns aren't as dangerous as rifles," Mattingly says, "so they tend to handle shotguns carelessly. But at the close ranges involved in most accidents, shotguns are perhaps even more deadly than rifles and deserve at least as much respect."

None of the accidents involved deer hunters, although deer hunting has the unearned reputation for being particularly risky. Most accidents are caused by carelessness or improper gun handling and can happen anywhere and at any time, Mattingly says.

If there is such a thing as a typical hunting accident, it involves a teenager hunting small game with a shotgun. He leaves the safety off and carelessly throws the gun over his shoulder, keeping his finger on the trigger. Suddenly he stumbles and the gun discharges; the shot load strikes either the hunter or a nearby companion.

"Good safety habits, the kind we teach in our hunter education program, can prevent this kind of hunting accident and practically all others," Mattingly says. "The rules of safe gun handling are few and simple, but they are important and must be observed at all times if accidents are to be avoided."

First, Mattingly says, always treat every gun as if it were loaded. Never point a gun, even an "empty" one, at anything you don't intend to shoot. While in the field, keep the safety on and always hold the gun so you can control the direction of the muzzle should you lose your footing.

Second, be sure of your target — and beyond. Never shoot at sound or movement. Know where your companions are at all times. Unless you're hunting waterfowl, doves, turkeys or other game with color vision, wear hunter orange. Although it's required only of gun deer hunters, this high-visibility color gives any hunter an extra margin of safety.

Third, be sure all guns are unloaded when they're not actually in use or when hazardous conditions exist. Guns should be unloaded in the home, in the hunting camp or in a vehicle. It takes only a few seconds to unload a gun before crossing a fence, jumping a ditch or crossing a patch of slick mud or ice — seconds which could save a life.

Finally, consider taking a hunter education course. These courses are being offered across the state and there is no charge for the 10-hour program, which includes four hours of actual range firing. Although the beginning hunter will benefit most, even old hands will very likely find they have a few unsafe habits which need correcting, Mattingly says.

To get information about a hunter education course in your area, write the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Conservation Education, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, or call (502) 564-4762.

Max Parrish, Murray, took this 14 point buck November 3 while hunting on the West Kentucky Wildlife Management Area, near Paducah. The deer field dressed at 190 pounds.

Check Stations

There is only two deer check stations in the Calloway County area, one is Big Mac's Sporting Goods, 641 South, in Murray, and Paul's Taxidermy, Irvan Cobb road, just off 94 East. Paul Black is the only check station with a scale to weigh deer.

Fishing Line

The days are long gone where a makeshift pole and garden worm will satisfy the sometime riverbank angler. Today's 64 million devoted American fishermen, who represent more than half of all Americans who participate in outdoor sports every year, mean business — in fact, about $588 million worth.

According to the American Fishing Tackle Manufacturers Association, the trend toward outdoor recreation appears to be growing. Part of the reason why fishing is so popular is that it is one of the most affordable sports around.

While fishing, one of our nation's leading outdoor sports, attracts a huge number of participants yearly, it requires a minimum individual expenditure in equipment.

For an investment of $15, the average fisherman can purchase a closed-faced reel and rod combination with lures and have a successful fishing experience.

Latest market reports also confirm that while high inflation and tighter energy supplies may have put the damper on some of the larger sports purchases — like recreational vehicles and snowmobiles — fishing remains the practical means by which most individuals and families can "get away from it all" and still not wind up in the poor house. Last year, for example, fishing enthusiasts spent 8.6 percent of the total sporting goods market sales of $5.8 billion yet comprised one of the highest participation levels of all sports.

Factors that lure more beginners into fishing as well as keeping veteran anglers heading back each year to the great outdoors include the wide assortment of new products that are introduced each year. Products to give professionals the power to wrestle with "fighting" fish, "lighter than air" designs in fishing tackle and gear for beginners, even color coordinated jumpsuits for the fashion minded outdoor women.

Comprising one of the most rapidly growing sectors in today's fishing industry, is women, representing 30 percent of all registered fishing license holders. Some experts maintain that as women occupy higher positions in today's business world, many of them seek refuge in the serenity of fishing a quiet lake or stream.

Others find that it's more exciting to join their husbands on fishing trips, than sit home and play the part of the weekend "fishing widow."

With local clubs helping youth to get "hooked on fishing," rather than drugs, there's a growing number of younger persons who are also acquiring a desire for the fun of fishing. Although they are not required by law to hold licenses in most states, last year it was estimated that 20 million youths under 16 years of age participated in sport fishing.

Once a fishing experience takes hold, reports indicate that it could mean lifelong devotion and enjoyment.

Happy Fishing!

Mature Freshman

Sleets Prefers Interviews To Follow Action

Tony Wilson

Ledger & Times
Sports Editor

"Do I have too?"
Please, Mont.
"I really don't want to."
Please, Mont.
"Okay. But remember this was your idea."
LaMont Sleets pulled off a shoe, tugged at a sock and looked at the reporter for the first question. A midweek Murray State basketball practice had just ended, and sweat still glistened on his skin.
"What's it like being a freshman on this team?"
Aw, see?" Sleets said. "That's just the reason I don't want to be interviewed. I'm a freshman. I haven't done anything. I don't deserve an interview."
"Okay, okay. Did you ever think you'd wind up at Murray State?"
"I just wanted a college scholarship," Sleets said, warming up now. "I knew everyone would look at me and say, 'He's just 5-10. He can't play college ball.' So I felt like I had to prove something every game."
He did. In huge amounts. And Eminence

High School was his testing grounds. He averaged 32 points, hauled in an amazing 10 rebounds as a guard and even saved the best for last.

In his final game, the last one of a regional tournament, Sleets scored 47 of his team's 59 points and grabbed 25 rebounds. Needless to say, members of the Racers coaching staff, as they had been all season, were impressed.

"We knew he was a blue chipper all the way," says Murray State Coach Ron Greene. "Even though he was scoring a lot of points, we figured he would be able to fit in any way we needed him to."

With the Racers' season opener less than a month away, Sleets has. Greene says he and Jerry Smith are currently running one-two at the guard spots.

Pretty heady stuff for a freshman? "I came in here knowing my biggest role wasn't going to be shooting," says Sleets. "I think I'm already a much better defensive player, and I know we've got guys who can shoot. I don't have to score points to be happy."

Sleets' concern with figures won't be confined to the court. He lists his major as accounting, so at night he must switch his thoughts from dunks (which he can perform) to assets, from bounce passes to bank statements.

But he doesn't see his major as a liability as far as his basketball career is concerned. "I came here to get an education as much as to play basketball," he says. That Sleets places as much importance on balance sheets as he does jump shots is just more evidence that he is a first-class student-athlete, Greene says.

"We want players like Mont to build a program on," he says. "His attitude is like that of a junior, not a freshman. I'd have to say maturity is one of greatest strengths."

And Sleets wants only to fit in any way he is needed. "I'd be great to start, but my life won't end if I don't. We all want to win games as a team."

Greene says he is happy with his team's progress, particularly with the intense competition among its members for starting berths.

"We've got seven or eight people that could start," Greene says. If the season were to open tomorrow, he says he would likely start Sleets and Smith at guards, Kenney Hammonds and Gary Hooker at forwards and Glen Green at center.

Green is only 6-6, rather small for a center, but Greene says his team will play taller than it really is. "We have some tremendous leapers. Sleets can dunk it any way you want him to, and just about everyone has a good vertical jump."

Only six of the 15 players on the roster have ever played a minute as a Racers, and that lack of coherence under game pressure will be one of the biggest early-season problems, Greene says.

"I look for us to get better as everyone gets used to everyone else. We'll field a good, exciting unit."

LaMont Sleets is just a freshman, but he is challenging for a starting spot on Murray State's basketball team.

Fort Campbell Edges Glasgow 6-3

Three Top-Ranked Advance

By the Associated Press

Three top-ranked teams moved a step closer to possible state championships with victories in the Kentucky high school football playoffs.

PREP PLAYOFFS

No. 1 Louisville Trinity of Jefferson County AAAA won its 12th game in as many starts Friday with a 21-0 win over fifth-ranked Louisville Ballard. Top-rated Belfry of Class AAA is now 11-0 after a 16-0 blanking of Leslie County while Class A leader Paintsville, 10-1, stopped previously unbeaten and third-ranked Harlan 16-0.

In other playoff games involving ranked teams:

—No. 3 Louisville Butler, 12-0, shaded previously unbeaten and second-ranked Louisville Iroquois 14-7 in the other Jefferson County game.

—No. 3 Franklin-Simpson advanced in Class AAA with a 16-14 overtime win over Union County.

—In Class AA, No. 2 Corbin, 11-0, nipped Russell County 6-5 and fifth-ranked Fort Campbell, 9-2, held off Glasgow 6-3.

—No. 2 Richmond Madison, 9-2, battered Owen County 19-8 in a Class A encounter while No. 4 Bellevue, 10-2, crushed Raceland 33-0 as Jon Sutkamp romped for 322 yards and five touchdowns.

In other playoff games, Lexington Henry Clay, 8-4, took a 20-0 decision from Boyd County in a State AAAA game while, in Class AA, Washington County, 10-2, shut out Fleming County 14-0. Russellville, 7-5, took a Class A game from Campbellsville 21-0.

Four games scheduled for Friday were postponed until today because of wet grounds. In those games, No. 1 Owensboro, 11-0, hosted No. 2 Franklin County, 12-0, in a State AAAA game, while in a Class AAA doubleheader, Meade County, 7-4, called on Montgomery County, 8-3, and No. 5 Lincoln County, 10-1, visited Fort Thomas Highlands, 8-4. In Class AA, No. 3 Pikeville, 10-1, was at Hazard, 6-5.

Jefferson County and State AAAA championships will be contested Friday, along with semifinals in AAA, AA and A. The four state title games will be held Nov. 22-23 at Louisville's Fairgrounds Stadium.

Tim McConnell ran for two touchdowns and Brent Catlett returned a punt 37 yards for another score as Trinity earned a berth in the Jefferson County finals against Butler, which edged Iroquois on the strength of Jeff Stoops' one-yard run in the fourth period.

Curt Childress and Jimmy Bevins each ran for a touchdown and a two-point conversion to pace Belfry over Leslie County, while Paintsville got scoring runs of 3 and 15 yards from Tom Jarrell in handing Harlan, 12-1, its first loss of the year.

Joe Phillips' 10-yard run and Kerry Baird's two-point conversion scamper proved the difference as Franklin-Simpson held on in overtime. Union County, 8-4, had gone ahead 14-8 on Tinker Tucker's nine-yard pass to Mark Cunningham, but the two-point conversion failed.

Bennie Lewis plunged a yard for the only touchdown of the game as Corbin kept alive hopes of duplicating its 1976 state title. Russell County, 8-5, scored on Dante Carpenter's 33-yard field goal in the third period before Corbin surrendered a safety with only seconds to play.

Fort Campbell, conquerers of two-time defending state champion Mayfield, used a key first period turnover to score the deciding touchdown against Glasgow. Tim Moody recovered at the Glasgow 30 and Kevin Extine scored five plays later on a nine-yard run. Glasgow, 8-4, managed only a 31-yard field goal by Scott Travis in the second period.

Americans Mahaffey, Irwin Appear Solid In World Cup

By the Associated Press

ATHENS, Greece — The World Cup Golf competition goes into its third round today, and it appears the Americans will win both the team and individual trophies.

Hale Irwin and John Mahaffey have everything going for them, "youth, experience and a good strong game," said Taiwanese golfer Lu Hsi Chuen after he and teammate Chen Tze Ming finished a slow 18 holes at the 6,809-yard, par-72 Glyfada golf course Friday.

"The Americans are too strong. They should win easily barring any mishap," Lu Hsi Chuen said.

Mahaffey faded slightly in Friday's second round while Irwin improved over his opening round with a 2-under-par 70. Mahaffey shot a 73, six more than Thursday, for a two-round total of 140 and a four-stroke lead over Irwin and two others.

Irwin was tied with Bernard Langer of Germany, who shot 70, and Juan Pinzon of Columbia, with 74. Lu Hsi Chuen was in a group of five golfers at 145.

"I had a good night's rest," Mahaffey said. "I feel good, really no reason for today's loose play."

He did complain about the greens, however, saying that "when you're at the tail end of 44 two man teams they tend to get bumpy. It's very difficult to putt on the greens at the end of the field."

Mahaffey said he had difficulty maintaining his concentration because of the slow play.

The Best Football Won't Be On Tube

By HERSCHEL NISSENSEN
AP Sports Writer

At Baton Rouge, No. 1-rated Alabama takes on Louisiana State before a howling crowd of more than 76,000, but LSU refused to move the starting time to accommodate ABC-TV. "Night time is our element," says LSU Coach Charlie McClendon.

At Houston, the fifth-ranked Houston Cougars, leaders in the Southwest Conference, entertain eighth-ranked Texas. The winner could be headed for the Cotton Bowl, but ABC used up Texas' allowable appearances by televising the Longhorns against Oklahoma and Arkansas.

At Tallahassee, seventh-ranked Florida State hosts No. 19 South Carolina in a skirmish between two of the nation's top independents, both undoubtedly bowl-bound, but that one won't be televised, either.

However, daytime TV fans can view a doubleheader from 12:30-4 p.m. EST (seven games) and 4-7 p.m. EST (three games). The Pacific-10 Conference showdown between fourth-ranked Southern California and No. 15

Washington at Seattle will be seen in most of the country — 85 percent is a good guess — in the later time slot.

Besides Southern California, there will be two other daytime games pairing members of The Associated Press Top Twenty. At Fayetteville, Ark., ninth-ranked Arkansas entertains No. 17 Baylor. Both have just one loss in Southwest Conference play and the winner will remain in the running for the Cotton Bowl.

And at West Lafayette, Ind., 10th-ranked Michigan will attempt to remain unbeaten in the Big Ten against No. 14 Purdue. Michigan is tied for the lead with third-ranked Ohio State, which plays host to Iowa.

The Big Eight leaders, as usual, are Nebraska and Oklahoma. Second-ranked Nebraska visits Kansas State while No. 6 Oklahoma is at home with Kansas.

In the Second Ten, No. 11 Brigham Young is at Long Beach State under the lights while afternoon action finds No. 12 Pitt at West Virginia, No. 13 Notre Dame at Tennessee, Mississippi State at No. 16 Auburn, No. 18 Clemson at North Carolina and Duke at No. 20 Wake Forest.

More than 76,000 people will cram their way into LSU's Tiger Stadium to see if the Tigers, a two-touchdown underdog, can end Alabama's 17-game winning streak, longest in the nation. In addition, Bama's Bear Bryant is seeking to become the first coach in NCAA history to win 100 games in a decade (he is 99-16-1 during the 1970s).

"It is a great place to play," Bryant says of Tiger Stadium. "If you haven't been there before, though, it can beat you. The crowd noise makes it difficult to hear the signals. I think we know what to expect."

A year ago, Houston clinched its second Cotton Bowl trip in three years by edging Texas 10-7 in Austin. The game matches one of the oldest football-playing colleges with one of the newest. Texas, in its 86th season, ranks seventh in wins with 585. Houston didn't begin playing major college football until 1946 and recorded its 200th triumph a couple of weeks ago.

"Houston has a more experienced line than we do and more experience at quarterback," Texas Coach Fred Akers says. "Their running backs are young, but they are the kind Houston always seems to have. They have a very deceptive offense. They pin you down by cutting right at you."

"Houston's defense is very similar to ours. They are strong and have both excellent people up front and in the secondary. And they are capable of making the big plays. Their defensive line is very large, aggressive and mobile."

Florida State Coach Bobby Bowden was the chief aide to Carolina's Jim Carlen at West Virginia from 1966-69. And when Carlen left for Texas Tech, Bowden was the head coach for the next six years.

The Seminoles squeaked out a come-from-behind 26-21 victory over unheralded Cincinnati a week ago, so Bowden hopes people will listen when he says that "this may be the best South Carolina team in years. Jim has done a good job of getting that program turned around. Certainly South Carolina will play its best game of the season. Just like us, they have a lot riding on this one. A win over Florida State would probably help in the national rankings and put those Gamecocks in the bowl picture."

Winnipeg Coach Is Fined For Altercation On Ice

By the Associated Press

MONTREAL — Winnipeg Jets Coach Tom McVie was fined $500 and suspended for three games by the National Hockey League for his conduct during last Tuesday's game between the Jets and the Atlanta Flames.

During an altercation on the ice, McVie attempted to scale a glass partition in order to get at Atlanta Coach Al McNair. However, McVie was restrained by security personnel before he could vault over the glass.

Assistant Coach Bill

Sutherland will guide the team in McVie's absence.

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — Harold Solomon made it to the quarterfinals of the $210,000 Stockholm Open with a 6-2, 6-2 victory over Jan Norback of Sweden.

In other matches, John McEnroe beat Steve Docherty 6-1, 6-3; Brian Gottfried advanced with a 6-3, 7-5 victory over Tom Gullikson; Gene Mayer beat Mark Cox of Britain 6-4, 6-4.

Assistant Coaches Become Instant NBA Winners

By the Associated Press
Paul Westhead and Richie Adubato made successful debuts as National Basketball Association head coaches...under completely different circumstances.

NBA ROUNDUP

Westhead is not celebrating his appointment, which could be for a lengthy time. Adubato is enjoying his job, which probably will be short-lived.

Westhead, an assistant coach, is acting as Los Angeles' interim head coach while Jack McKinney recovers from head injuries and a fractured elbow. He guided the Los Angeles Lakers to a 126-122 overtime victory over the Denver Nuggets Friday night. Adubato, filling in while Detroit finds a replacement for the fired Dick Vitale, directed the Pistons to a surprising 106-98 triumph over the Philadelphia 76ers.

In other NBA games, the Boston Celtics downed the Kansas City Kings 127-119, the Phoenix Suns defeated the Cleveland Cavaliers 110-106, the Washington Bullets trimmed the San Antonio Spurs 125-116, and the Chicago Bulls whipped the San Diego Clippers 107-92.

Los Angeles owner Jerry Buss said that the 39-year-old Westhead, who like McKinney is in his first year with the Lakers, would be the head coach in McKinney's absence.

"I feel it would be unfair to the players to expose them to another new style of basketball," said Buss.

Meanwhile, McKinney, injured in a bicycle accident, was listed in serious but stable condition at a hospital in Torrance, Calif. Buss visited him Friday and said: "McKinney fades in and out of consciousness but he has been able to repeat his name."

A concrete prognosis on McKinney is not expected before early next week. While eagerly awaiting the medical report on their injured coach, the Lakers outlasted Denver as rookie Earvin "Magic" Johnson scored a season-high 31 points, Jamaal Wilkes collected 26 and Kareem Abdul-Jabbar had 25. Wilkes tied the score at 107 with two seconds left in regulation on a 20-foot jumper by Wilkes.

"We looked like we were concerned about things other than basketball," said Westhead. "...Our players are very concerned about Jack (McKinney)."

John Roche and David Thompson each scored 23 points for Denver.

Pistons 106, 76ers 98 — The Pistons, playing their first game since the firing of Vitale, upset Philadelphia behind Bob Lanier's 26 points and the defensive play of Terry Tyler. Tyler held the 76ers' high-scoring Julius Erving to 13 points, 14 below his average.

"This is the best game we've played collectively," said Lanier. "This is the most intensity I've seen on this team since the beginning of last season when Dick (Vitale) took over. We played great defense. Richie (Adubato) harped on that the last two days."

"Things haven't been going well lately but something like this will really help us," said Adubato, an assistant until Vitale was fired. "I really was kind of loose tonight. It's pretty clear the management only wants me to help out in some way."

Doug Collins paced the 76ers with 21 points.

Celtics 127, Kings 119 — Boston got 27 points from Cedric Maxwell, 25 from Dave Cowens and 21 from Nate Archibald in beating Kansas City for its sixth straight victory and 10th in 12 games, the best percentage in the league.

The Celtics, Atlantic Division leaders, went ahead to stay 105-103 on a jump shot by Archibald with eight minutes left, then pulled away in the last three minutes with six straight points — on two free throws by Cowens, and field goals by Larry Bird and M.L. Carr.

Otis Birdsong was high for the Kings with 32 points.

Suns 110, Cavaliers 106 — Phoenix hit four free throws with one second left in downing Cleveland after the Cavaliers had led by 18 points with 3:18 remaining in the third period.

The parade to the foul line began when Phoenix' Walter Davis was fouled — a call hotly disputed by Cleveland — while attempting a 20-foot desperation jump shot as time was running out.

After Davis sank the first free throw, breaking a 106-106 deadlock, Cleveland Coach Stan Albeck argued vehemently about the foul call and was assessed a technical by referee Joe Crawford. Paul Westphal hit the technical.

Then Davis sank his second foul shot, and before Cleveland could inbound the ball, the Cavs' Campy Russell was tagged with a technical by referee Wally Rooney. Again Westphal hit the free throw.

"To me, it looked like Walter Davis lost control of the ball, went up for the shot and hit Campy Russell with his outside arm," said the irate Albeck. "I didn't even think I touched him," said Russell, game-high scorer with 28 points. Truck Robinson led Phoenix with 21.

Bullets 125, Spurs 116 — Elvin Hayes and Kevin Porter, under fire for Washington's slow start this season, quieted the critics by sparking the Bullets over slumping San Antonio, loser of four of its last five games. Hayes led the Bullets with 34 points and Porter contributed 16 assists.

Bobby Dandridge added 26 points for Washington, while George Gervin had 37 for the Spurs.

Bulls 107, Clippers 92 — Rookie David Greenwood's 29 points and Reggie Theus' 26 helped Chicago end a seven-game losing streak by beating San Diego.

Norman Is No Longer 'Stormin'

By the Associated Press
ATLANTA — Norm Van Brocklin, known as "Stormin' Norman" while head coach of the Minnesota Vikings and Atlanta Falcons of the National Football League, is rarely heard from these days as an collegiate assistant coach.

The desk in his small basement office at Georgia Tech carries the only mention of his current job — a memo pad that says "Norm Van Brocklin, Assistant Football Coach."

And, he said, "That's all I am these days. I'm the back-field coach at Georgia Tech, period."

But before he was fired as the Falcons' coach midway through the 1974 season, it was much more than that.

The former Oregon All-American and college football Hall of Fame member led the Los Angeles Rams and the Philadelphia Eagles to NFL titles. He began coaching in Minnesota and lasted from 1961 until 1966. He joined the Falcons in 1968.

Until joining Tech this season, Van Brocklin spent his time at his 174-acre pecan farm at nearby Social Circle.

The 53-year-old Van Brocklin also had some time to reflect on his nickname, which was earned from stormy confrontations with the news media and his players.

"Well," he said, "a lot of my 'stormy' career was caused by other 'stormy' people. But I didn't miss many at-bats. I was no angel."

Van Brocklin also has had to face health problems in recent months. After being named to the Tech job, he underwent brain surgery. Then a few months later he developed a blood clot and was hospitalized again.

"That's one of the funny things about this job. I survived two brain operations and now I swear I'm going to get it on I-20," he said, referring to Atlanta's growing interstate highway traffic.

I'M LOOKING FOR A JOB WITH ADVENTURE!

Heavens, no, it's not for me! It's for my grandson. He's graduating from high school soon.

I'm proud of that boy. He's a good student and I know he'll succeed in anything he does. But that's what worries me. He's still undecided about what he wants to do now, go to college or find a job.

He likes to travel, too. You know how teenagers are today, always looking for adventure. That's my grandson! I want him to get off on the right foot in life with something he'll really enjoy and can have as a career.

A friend of mine told me about her grandson in the Navy. She mentioned he was working at a job he liked, was earning a good salary, and, at the same time, was getting an education. It was hard to believe that he gets all those benefits plus room and board. Then she told me that he'll be shipping out to other parts of the world in a few weeks.

My grandson would love that! As a tyke he was always interested in ships and planes and submarines. The Navy just might be the answer to my worries and his future.

INTERNATIONAL

Palestine Liberation Organization sources expressed hope some of the 60 American hostages at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran — perhaps a dozen — will be released soon, but the State Department was less optimistic.

A PLO source in Istanbul, Turkey, said Friday the three-man team guerrilla chief Yasser Arafat sent to Tehran was hopeful some of the hostages would be freed shortly.

BANGKOK, Thailand (AP) — Rosalynn Carter flew home today with "a renewed sense of mission, pledging the United States would provide all the help it could to help feed and care for thousands of starving Cambodian refugees living in squalor inside Thailand.

Speaking to representatives of relief agencies trying to care for Cambodians here she said America would "work in any way possible...to do what we can to help you and your efforts."

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were no indications here of an imminent breakthrough in securing the release of some 60 American hostages in Iran, and President Carter was asking Americans to restrain their "outrage" and "frustration" over the situation.

State Department spokesman Hodding Carter said Friday he was unable to offer "some new hope about a speedy release" of the Americans held hostage at the U.S. Embassy in Tehran.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Carter has sent a handwritten note to his Cabinet officials telling them not to make any promises about spending that he will have to break in an election year.

The president's note underlines the tough political problems facing him in the 1981 budget. He will send this budget to Congress early next year.

$25 Million Riverfront Plan Set At Covington

COVINGTON, Ky. (AP)—The planners of a project to develop Covington's riverfront have unveiled plans which are expected to cost about $25 million and include two high-rise condominiums and a restaurant.

Winston Folkers, president of Koetzle Corp., discussed the plans Thursday with the Covington city commissioners. Koetzle has been hired by the city to plan the project.

Mayor George Wermeling praised the project and predicted neighborhood groups who are still to review would also give their approval.

The board failed to act on City Manager Wally Pagan's recommendation to hire an architectural-engineering firm to make a detailed land use plan of the area.

The plan is needed before the city can apply for a federal Urban Development Action Grant to acquire land for the development and make public improvements, Pagan said.
